worker_max_threads

Synopsis

`worker_max_threads` = threads

Where threads is the total number of Worker threads. By adjusting this field, the administrator may improve the Worker's performance. However the increase in threads also increases the Worker's memory requirements. The Worker typically doesn't need a lot of threads to deal with normal usage.

Example

`worker_max_threads = 10`

Defaults

8